the art and science of leadership 7th edition safn: Leadership Air University (U S) Air War College, WILLIAM S. TULLY, 2025-05-22 Go to any bookstore and one will find a plethora of books dealing with the subject of leadership. Their methodology is strikingly similar--take a significant historical event, be it in business, sports, religion, or military endeavors, find the person most responsible for the favorable outcome and retroactively derive the individual's guiding principles. The vast majority tell compelling stories of past heroic acts while attempting to formulate strategies, lessons, laws, tenets, secrets, rules and tools, or principles of leadership. However, very few, if any, works pull together the leadership lessons learned and provide a framework that 1) can be used as an educational tool to a military, sports, business, governmental, or religious audience; 2) provides focus to a strategic end in an ever changing environment; and 3) delineates between the art and science of leadership, to include the importance of the questions what and how the art and science are to be executed. This paper attempts to provide a prescriptive framework which is malleable to the vast majority of these works, and augments AFDD 1-1, Leadership and Force Development, AU-2, Guidelines for Command, and AU-24, Concepts for Air Force Leadership. The paper will examine both the art and science of leadership and provide a framework to enable leaders in any field of endeavor to improve their leadership skills. the art and science of leadership 7th edition safn: Loose Leaf for The Art of Leadership

George Manning, Kent Curtis, 2021-01-07 The Art of Leadership is based on two ideas: 1. Leadership will take place to the extent the leader cares about the work to be done. Equally important, the leader must care about people. Neither of these qualities is sufficient without the other, and neither can be false. People know when the leader cares. When the leader is committed to the task and is concerned about people, these qualities serve as magnets and motivators to followers, and their potential for achievement becomes enormous. 2. Leadership is an art that can be developed through mastery of nine key areas of success. The successful leader must possess knowledge and skills in the following areas: understanding leadership variables, the power of vision, the importance of ethics, the empowerment of people, leadership principles, understanding people, multiplying effectiveness, developing others, and performance management. The difference between most other leadership texts and the Art of Leadership can be compared to the difference between a lecture and seminar. Although both are good educational vehicles, the lecture is better for conveying large amounts of information, while the seminar is better for developing skills and attitudes. A good lecture is interesting and builds knowledge, while a good seminar is stimulating and builds competency. Without sacrificing either theoretical foundation or important content, the 6th edition of The Art of Leadership emphasizes the interactive, seminar approach to learning. The 7th edition remains reader-centered, research-based, practical, and personalized. The Instructor Resources for the 7th edition have been vastly enhanced, including the PowerPoint and test bank.
