international trade law indira carr 5th edition: A Critique of Anti-Dumping Laws Owais Hasan Khan, 2018-10-12 This book presents a critical analysis of anti-dumping laws enforced by the World Trade Organisation. Anti-dumping laws are the most debatable provisions of the WTO, which, though legally permitted, have a significant distorting effect on trade. They are also often used as a non-tariff barrier to trade in the form of regulatory protectionism. The book brings forth the philosophical, conceptual and practical flaws of international anti-dumping laws, and establishes a case for the repealing of such laws. Furthermore, it proposes the replacement of these laws with international competition law. In doing so, it also demonstrates the ascendancy of international competition law over anti-dumping laws, and discusses India's take on anti-dumping laws and their incorporation in domestic regulations.

international trade law indira carr 5th edition: The Contracts of Carriage of Goods by Sea by Reference to International Instruments Such as the Hague-Visby Rules Ngutor Jato, 2019-04-30 Essay from the year 2017 in the subject Law - Civil / Private, Trade, Anti Trust Law, Business Law, grade: 71, Coventry University, course: Oil, Gas and Energy Law, language: English, abstract: This essay will critically discuss the contracts of carriage of goods by sea which are covered by a bill of lading by making reference to governing international instruments such as the Hague-Visby Rules. It is right to say that trade in goods represent an essential share in the gross domestic product (GDP) of most states or regions, and that international trade transactions continue to support significantly, the economic growth and development of various nations. However, it must be noted that this trade is largely dependent on the transportation of such goods from one place to another except, of course, where the sale relates to electronic items such as software and electronic books. Otherwise, transportation is integral to international trade and depending on the sale contract (e.g. cost, insurance, freight - CIF or free on board - FOB) between the seller and the buyer, the seller is usually responsible for arranging for the transportation of the cargo from his country to the buyer's country. The transportation of goods may be by air, road, rail, or sea. The transportation of goods, by whatever mode, must be done in a safe and efficient manner if the parties to the transaction are to be satisfied and trade relations, sustained. Therefore, it is paramount to have in place binding agreement between parties to any contract for the transportation of goods as well as laws which create, unify and, if necessary, regulate the transactions by setting minimum or further obligations, liabilities and rights for the parties.

international trade law indira carr 5th edition: Patent Exhaustion and International Trade Regulation Santanu Mukherjee, 2023-03-13 This book dives into the legal and economic rationale of patent exhaustion, studying its evolution from the beginning in Germany, UK and USA, to Japan and 10 developing countries. The author also analyses exhaustion under TRIPS, GATT, GATS and major regional agreements, including the EU, before assessing the interface of patent exhaustion with competition policy. The book also addresses public policy concerns of Least developed and developing countries linked to their IPR challenges as IP users. It concludes that an appropriate exhaustion mode under relevant legal measures would protect patents while also restraining patents to become non-tariff barriers. The open access publication of this book has been published with the support of the Swiss National Science Foundation.
